Fiend Folio 1st edition – Forgotten Realms Wiki

Fiend Folio is any of three products published for successive editions of the fantasy role-playing game Dungeons & Dragons. All three are collections of monsters. The bulk of the material in the first edition came from the British gaming magazine White Dwarf, rather than being authored by Gary Gygax, the game's co-creator. Readers and gamers had submitted creatures to the "Fiend Factory" department of the magazine, and the most highly regarded of those appearing in the first thirteen issues were

Fiend Folio - Wikipedia

1981's Fiend Folio was the abysmal result of a failed merger between TSR and UK publisher Games Workshop. The majority of the monsters contained in the book are taken from the pages of White Dwarf, a gaming magazine still being published by GW. Whatever the original source of the monsters, TSR ultimately published Fiend Folio.

Advanced Dungeons & Dragons: 1st Edition Fiend Folio (part 1)

The Fiend Folio was a 1981 Monster Manual -like book for Advanced Dungeons & Dragons 1st edition. It served to gather up the various monsters that had been submitted to TSR works but not made the MM itself as of its 1978 edition - for instance, kuo-toa, svirfneblin and of course the official full writeup of drow.

The Fiend Folio was one of the most original releases from TSR (UK)Ltd in the early days of Dungeons and Dragons before commercialism took over the industry. This is a classic collection of strange and wonderful creatures created for the classic role-play game of Dragons, elves dwarves and goblins created by TSR in the late 70's.

Advanced Dungeons and Dragons Fiend Folio: Amazon.co.uk ...

Even given the wild and woolly state of 1st edition AD&D, the Fiend Folio had its detractors. A young Ed Greenwood (whose own homegrown fantasy world/campaign setting, the Forgotten Realms , would become D&D -official in a few years) famously took part in a point-counterpoint editorial with Don Turnbull in the pages of Dragon magazine in 1981 over the quality of the monsters within.
